

MINES OF CHYBISA 1

INTRODUCTION

This document outlines the possible number, type and location of Chybisian mines. It is an early work-in-progress. Comments & suggestions are welcome – fastred@mac.com.

OVERVIEW

Chybisa has a relatively strong mineral wealth, principally sourced from the western Anadel highlands. This is a source of conflict and controversy with the Bujoc, and possibly Melderyn, which claims Chybisa.

Chybisa has 11 mines or quarries, supplying all of Chybisa's metal, mineral and stone requirements. Chybisa has no known clay, gypsum or mica deposits.

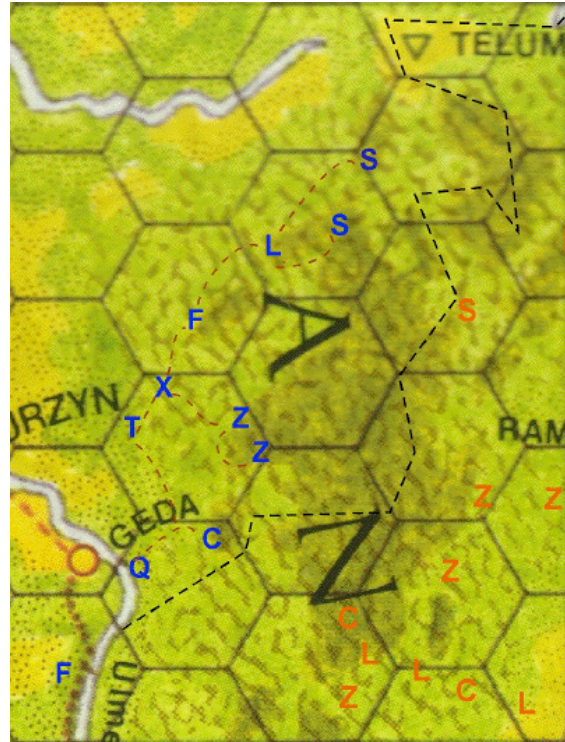

Chybisa's mineral resources are from two general areas – a northern set of mines, and a southern set of deposits.

The northern mines are reached via a trail from the eastern bank of the Ulmerien river, just southeast of Geda. This trail leads to a total of five mines. The first is a copper mine almost 5 leagues due east from Geda, which is located in rough highlands to the east of the trail. The trail then turns north to a tin mine in the foothills of the Anadel Highlands. Northwest of this is a lead mine, and higher in the highlands are two silver mines.

The southern sources include the only mine west of the Ulmerien river, an iron mine in the hills over looking the Genin trail and Ulmerien river valley 4 leagues south of Geda. To the east, across the river, is Chybisa's principal stone quarry, where the stone for the construction of Burzyn was acquired.

From this point a trail runs due east into the foothills of the Anadel highlands. It leads to Chybisa's principal salt mine, then on up into the highlands themselves, where the realms' two zinc mines are located. Just to the north of the salt mine is a second iron mine.
